A BROKEN-DOWN SYSTEM.
This is a condition (or disease) to which doctors give many names, but which few of them really understand. It is simply weakness—a break-down, as it were, of the vital forces that sustain the system. No matter what may be its causes (for they are almost numberless), its symptoms are much the same; the more prominent being sleeplessness, sense of prostration or weariness, depression of spirits and want of energy for all the ordinary affairs of life. Now, what alone is absolutely essential in all such cases is restored vitality—vigour—
VITAL STRENGTH & ENERGY
to throw off these morbid feelings, and experience proves that as night succeeds the day this may be more certainly secured by a course of

This wonderful medicament is suitable for all ages, constitutions and conditions, in either sex; and it is difficult to conceive a case of disease or derangement whose main features are those of debility, that will not be speedily and permanently overcome by this recuperative essence, which is destined to cast into oblivion everything that had preceded it for this wide-spread and numerous class of human ailments.
THERAPION is obtainable of principal Chemists or from The Le Clerc Medicine Co., Haverstock Road, Hampstead, London. Price in England, 2/9. Purchasers should see that word THERAPION appears on British Government Stamp (in white letters on a red ground) affixed to every genuine package.

The accident occurred just opposite the Beni Israel Cemetery where the road is very narrow. The deceased was thrown against the cemetery wall and struck by the handle of his cart in his right side sustaining a fracture of three ribs and liver. AGA KHAN HOCKEY TOURNAMENT.

Pioneer "A" vs. Rising Star.

These teams met on the Marine Lines last night, the match concluding the second round of the tournament. It will be remembered that the Rising Star were given a walk over in the first round by the Northampton Regiment, and that the Pioneer's defeated the Mazagon Y. M. C. A. by ten goals to nil. Last night's match was won by the Pioneer's by five goals to love, one point scored in the first half and four in the second. It was the "Stars" first appearance in senior hockey and, all things considered, they are entitled to more than usual credit for their fight. In the first half they had a fair share of the attack, at times playing clever hockey. And, after the interval, when their opponents were displaying much improved form, they defended pluckily, and frequently got to the attack. They lacked experience, however, and were unable to stay the face set by their opponents. The latter's goals were scored by Khambatta in the first half, and afterwards by S. Palvankar, Driver, Choksi, and G. Palvankar.

The teams were as follows :—

Pioneer's "A" :—Goal, Dick ; backs, V. Palvankar and Karanja ; half-backs, Surveyor, Nanji, and Divacha ; forwards, Khambatta, S. Palvankar, Driver, G. Palvankar, and Choksi.

Rising Star :—Goal, Modi; backs, W. Kamat and Parakh ; half-backs, H. Wagle, Rane and Dongre ; forwards, Wacha, Sanzgiri, K.Kamat, R. Wagle and Powell.

To-day's match (third round) is between Lusitanians and the Grant Medical College.

On Monday the Cheshires will play the Pioneer's.

On Saturday the 14th Hussars meet the Y. M. C. A. and on Tuesday the Presidency and Friends' Union meet the Byculla English High School.

The semi-finals will be played on Wednesday and Thursday and the final on Saturday. All games will be played on the Marine Lines.

STANDING COMMITTEE MEETING.

New Chairman.

A meeting of the Standing Committee of the Bombay Municipal Corporation was held yesterday afternoon, the Hon'ble Sir Sassoon David presiding.

The Committee recorded a letter from the Commissioner intimating that Government had appointed the Hon'ble Sir Sassoon David, Mr. James MacDonald, Mr. E. M. Pross and Mr. Phiroze C. Sethna to be members of the Committee.

The Committee next proceeded with the election of Chairman for the year 1910-11.

Mr. James MacDonald proposed that the Hon'ble Mr. Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy Ebrahim be appointed Chairman of the Committee. He said Mr. Fazulbhoy's rise in public life was quite rapid and he had no doubt that he would make a capable Chairman.

The Hon'ble Mr. Manmohandas Ramji, seconding the motion, agreed with all that fallen from Mr. Macdonald.

The Hon'ble Sir Sassoon David, supported the motion, which was carried amid applause.

The Hon'ble Mr. Fazulbhoy in reply said his first words to them must be of gratitude for the great honour they had done him by electing him as Chairman of the Standing Committee for the ensuing year ; and of assurance to his colleagues that he would endeavour to discharge the duties of this high office, conscientiously, impartially and to the best of his abilities. The duties of the Chairman as his distinguished predecessor, Sir Sassoon David, had said the other day, were onerous and it was natural that he (the speaker) should feel diffident that day. But he relied upon their valuable co-operation and good-will to enable him to discharge his duties to their satisfaction and to the advantage of the public. They were passing through a time when all their efforts should be directed to husband their resources and he assured them that he would always keep before him this desired end. He could only promise to exercise a vigilant control over the finances of this Municipality and the success would depend upon their co-operation and upon favourable circumstances. He thanked them most cordially for the flattering words that Mr. Macdonald and others had said about him. He attributed them more to their kindness to him than to his fitness, but he assured them that he would try his best to deserve their approbation at the end of his term. He thanked them all once more for electing him to the chair.

The Committee recorded a letter from the Commissioner reporting for the information of the Standing Committee and the Corporation the figures of the Municipal income for the year ending March 31st last. It would be seen that the actual receipts for the year amounted to Rs. 1,11,15,944 were better than the revised estimates by Rs. 1,48,674, and better than the original estimates by Rs. 2,55,944. The total expenditure was within the budgeted amount.

The Committee considered a letter from the Commissioner stating that in response to the invitation of tenders for the supply of clothing to the employes of the different departments of the Municipality during 1910-11, two tenders had been received as follows :—1. Messrs. Bhawoo Kashinath & Co., Rs. 14,930-8-0; and 2. Mr. Mulla Tyebally Mulla Hyderalli, Rs. 15,915-2-0. As the tender of Messrs. Bhawoo Kashinath & Co. was lower, he proposed to accept it under Section 72 (2) of the Municipal Act subject to the sanction of the Standing Committee under Section 69 (c) of the Act to a contract being entered into with the firm for the supply.

The sanction asked for was granted.

MR. FORREST AND INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT.

In the "Asiatic Quarterly Review" Mr. R. E. Forrest comments on the pap er of Mr. F. J. E. Spring, formerly of the Public Works Department, which was read at a meeting of the East India Association in January last, and to which we drew attention at the time. Mr. Spring's was an official paper on "Industrial and Technical Education", intended for a conference. Mr. Forrest was reminded that he had written a paper on the same subject fifty years earlier, viewing the situation in different aspects. It was written in a different age, when the throes of the birth of the new industrial system, of that sudden huge development, were still felt, when one viewed the workings of things through such different eyes as those of Ruskin and Buckle. And so Mr. Forrest would have us go back to the past in order to see how far his conclusions and prognostications have been verified, whether there has been progress or retrogression. He essays to discuss the subject of industrial and technical education, but he brings into it some of those more general reflections and forecastings of that bygone brochure and in order to do so divides his paper into two parts, dividing it into the then and the now and the bringing of the first down to the second. It is the first part only which Mr. Forrest gives us in the current number of the "Journal" and, in more than usually laboured style, unfortunately, he presents us with a series of instructive pictures of what was. Stripped of much verbiage his sentences tell us how famines retarted progress and the introduction of railways and irrigation canals reduced famine to comparatively insignificant proportions. The railways produced a condition of things very different from what prevailed before their introduction. They supplied the means for the conveyance of foodstuffs with certainty and rapidity throughout the land and produced a revolution in trade and commerce in the main industry of the land viz. that of agriculture, in all the industries connected with it, a great industrial development. These also brought about a great enhancement of the value of the canals. These became of use not only in periods of drought but in ordinary years by enabling the cultivator to grow better crops, larger crops and to dispose of his surplus.

Adverting to the progress which has been made, Mr. Forrest stoutly asserts that much more would have been achieved "but for the fetters of caste, of the choking, stupefying, deadening, foul, mephitic miasma of religion." This, he declares, continued on the same level as in the time of its beginning, in the far-back days of barbarism and savagery. "It was as then of the earth, earthly. In it show large the bull, the tiger, the alligator, the snake and the qualities of cruelty, of cunning, of deceit, of furious lust, of fierce greed and blood-thirstiness." And so on. But Mr. Forrest admits that to understand fully the manners and customs, the domestic and social and religious institutions of the Hindus it is necessary to have been in contact with the conditions of which they were moulded, to have felt the smite of the sun; breathed the air over-loaded with damp, or from which all the oxygen has been burnt out; felt the fœtidness of town and village; known how that fœtidness held sway undisturbed, with an ever-increasing force for evil, when the air lay motionless for long periods over town and village; experienced the ill odours; known the languor; known the volcanic outburst of disease, the quick-spreading contagion and the sudden death . . . have come to appreciate the fear of contamination and its possible dread results. You would then have understood, if you cared to, how the system of caste, with its good and evil, its banning and blessing, its injurious exalting and degrading, its preserving and its arresting power, its armour and shackles, owed its origin and continuance, its enormous force, not merely to the love of power, of self-exaltation, of tyranny in man but to natural causes also. Mr. Forrest means to be soothing and succeeds. It is not necessary to follow him through further verbal labyrinths having sufficiently indicated the manner and method of his treatment of the subject.

But there is a pathetic strain in his paper where he refers to the fate of the handloom-weaver, when the rising flood of machine-made cotton goods from England threatened him with drowning. He witnessed the ever-increasing rise of that flood as the communication with England improved, that improvement rising to a very high pitch with the opening of the Suez Canal. The sad case of the Indian weaver was recognised and mourned, as was that of the handloom weaver in England. And in his case, too, it had to be pointed out that unless a nation was content to remain stationary, never to progress, to rise, content to lie stranded on the shores of time, such dislocation of existing circumstances, with their attendant shaking and troubles and sufferings, were to be looked for, that against the sufferings of a class had to be set the gain of the whole community. With regard to the great deal of writing lately on the subject of the industrial development of India, Mr. Forrest observes that it would appear from it as if that development had only just presented itself to the writers as a very desirable thing; that it must be called into being instanter by means of technical schools, multiplied regardless of cost. But, as Mr. Forrest sets forth, Indian industrial development began long ago—began in company of other developments, with the full extension of a strong central authority; of peace and security; with the opening out of the means of communication, the production of a freely flowing internal commerce; with the inauguration of a reign of law and justice; with good settled systems of administration; with the establishment of great public services, military and civil, in which multitudes of Indians earn an adequate, an affluent, a certain subsistence for life; with the rise of a new middle class, consisting of those servants of the State, of lawyers, doctors, journalists, merchants, traders, manufacturers, contractors; with a diffusion of wealth never before known; with the rise in the purchasing power of the whole community; with the appearance, in enormously increased number, and with greatly increased power of acquisition of the buyer on whom the existence of all industries depends. During fifty-five years of his own observation he has seen nothing but a continuous development in India. No more has any other observer. But we wish Mr. Forrest had told us his story with less vigour and less warmth and in more elegant diction than he has chosen to employ.

A GREAT ANGLO-INDIAN OF FORMER DAYS.

The current numbe of the "Edinburgh Review" has a very pleasant but laborious article about the life and career of a little known Anglo-Indian ruler of former days, Governor Pitt, about whom not many particulars are to be found in ordinary books about India. The late Sir Henry Yule by his indefatigable researches among old records and other documents that had long lain untouched at the India office and elsewhere, brought to light twenty years ago, a little before his untimely end, many facts about Pitt's career in India, and the writer of the present article has, with the aid of Yule's materials as well as the later research of Mr. C. R. Wilson, who was in charge of the records of the Government of India, produced a valuable essay in the bye-ways of Anglo-Indian history and biography. Governor Pitt is hardly remembered now, except in connection with the famous diamond called after him the Pitt Diamond. But he has many stronger claims to remembrance in our history in India than this. Even the Pitt Diamond has made him renumbered in a bad light, as Pope has immortalised the scandal that he acquired it has unfair means in the oft-quoted couplet: "Asleep and naked as an Indian lay, An honest factor stole a gem away." Pitt himself took the trouble to refute this falsehood in a pamphlet in which he showed the true fact that he had paid more than twenty thousand pounds for this gem in India. But the popular memory has long since forgotten this pamphlet, and the telling couplet still clings to it. Governor Pitt, as he is usually called, was the grandfather of the great Earl of Chatham for whom he had much affection and whom he left a lad of eighteen when he died in 1726 at the ripe age of 73. Sir William Hunter well calls him one of the ablest Englishmen who had been sent to India up to his time. He impressed much of his vigour and personality on the affairs of the East India Company of his latter days. Unfortunately he did not serve the Company long. He had begun his Indian career when already in his teens on what was called an interloper and an interloper, unauthorised and pated by the Company whose trade he ignored, he continued for more than twenty years. He prospered exceedingly in his Indian enterprises in spite of the Company's hindrance, and had entered Parliament and acquired considerable influence. Suddenly the Company, acknowledging itself beaten in the struggle with this intrepid and successful interloper, offered him the supreme management of its affairs on the East Coast and made him Governor of Madras. He now loyally employed all his unbounded energy for the protection of his masters' vast trade and pursued interlopers vigorously. He remained Governor for more than eleven years from 1698 till the end of 1709; in fact he held his high post for longer period than any other Governor of Madras before or since. His Governorship was eventful as another Company which had obtained a charter from William III had come to the east to injure the existing corporation. This new Company was amalgamated with the old during Pitt's rule after much trouble and worry. The native powers, the Moghul and the Mahratta, also were serious sources of annoy ance. But he smoothed everything in the end. On his return he again entered Parliament and was for a short while Governor of Jamaica. His son, Robert Pitt, the father of the Earl of Chatham also had come out to Madras with him; and his cousin, John Pitt, was in the new Company with which he was at loggerheads. Thus the great house of Pitt is intimately connected with India during early British rule; and when William Pitt, the great Commoner, and great-grandson of Governor Pitt, passed his famous India Bill in 1784, and laid the basis of Indian administration as we find it in our days, he may be said to have had an hereditary interest in this country.

THE TRAFFIC IN OLD AND WORN OUT HORSES.

A pamphlet which has been issued by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals raises again, in a forcible manner the question of the traffic in old and worn out horses, which has been permitted to exist between England and Belgium. There has been a great outcry about this at home, and it seems to have been generally admitted that in many instances, the animals exported have been in such an advanced stage of weakness and emaciation that to condemn them to a sea voyage on a crowded boat has entailed the infliction of revolting cruelty. The authorities, however, have shown a strange indisposition to take any active measures. They apparently have been content to watch the efforts of the S. P. C. A. in London, where backed as they have been by the practical sympathy of the stipendiary magistrates, they have been able to remove the worst features of the traffic. But other ports such as Goole and Newcastle are left untouched, and meanwhile demands for reform are vaguely met by hints of a Parliamentary Bill. This, however, is quite an unnecessary measure. There seems no necessity to stop this trade—which is said to be a valuable one—altogether, but merely to secure that it is conducted under efficient supervision, and without the infliction of any more hardship than is unavoidably connected with the transport of live stock by sea. For this the powers of the Board of Agriculture are already sufficient. An order of 1898 prohibits the exportation of "any horse which cannot be conveyed without cruelty during the intended passage and on landing." This provides all the necessary powers to deal with the business, and why the Government has not long ago given definite instructions that they should be enforced, it is difficult to understand.

GERMAN POLAR EXPEDITION.

The German Polar Expedition, like the German Navy, is perfectly inocuous and there is no intention or desire to compete with Britain. So we are assured by Lieutenant Filchner who is to have charge of it. The object of the expedition is to ascertain the relation to each other of the great land masses of East and West Antarctica—and incidentally to hoist a few samples of the German flag perhaps, though it is not foreshadowed by the explorer, and matters will wait till such time as the Poles are known and their minerals exploited. He owns he has received a powerful stimulus from Sir Ernest Shackleton and Dr. Penck. He will make Weddell Sea his point of departure. As a matter of fact, he says, in the present state of our knowledge regarding the extreme South, Weddell's old idea that open sea extends below 75deg. South appears thoroughly worthy of acceptance. If this be so, it would presumably be possible to reach high latitudes by sea in a vessel designed for arctic conditions, and thus to obtain a base very close to the Pole for the southward dash, perhaps even for a dash clear across the continent. What Lieutenant Filchner wants to know is whether East and West Antarctica are connected or separate—a point which does not seem of vital importance. However Germany thinks it is worth while paying for the discovery and the expedition is to start as early as may be. Lieutenant Filchner has made journeys in Tibet, the Pamirs and China, and that is supposed to qualify him to lead an expedition to the South Polar regions. The German scientific world has faith in him, so he is preparing to undertake the task.

A BENGAL Government Notification declares the following publications seditious, and forfeited to the Crown:—"India," "Suryodayam" or "Laurore," "Hind Serayya," "Universal Dawn," "Mustafa Kamal Pasha's speech" and "Defense of Socrates."

THE Government of India have received a number of replies from local Governments giving their opinions on the recommendations of the Decentralisation Commission, dealing with finance. It is difficult to indicate the general trend of their views, but they are understood to favour a reduction in the number of the divided heads of revenue. They also recognise the desirability of converting unduly large fixed assignments into growing shares of revenue. As soon as replies from Burma and Bombay are received the Government of India will proceed to deal with the question.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

(FROM OUR LADY CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, APRIL 1.

MADAME REJANE, who has attended the famous murder trial at Venice, gives impressions of the case in the "Figaro" in the form of a letter. She says: "You have asked me for my personal impressions of the Venice trial. Having been kindly permitted by the presiding judge to take a seat with the correspondents of foreign newspapers, one of which had asked me to write an article, I felt so oppressed at heart at the sight of the four prisoners that I felt that I had neither the right nor the strength to give a hasty opinion on so grave a question. I left with my mind made up from what I had read. Since I have seen the actual trial my impressions are entirely different. The first and strongest is that none of the prisoners had any preconceived, deliberate intention of killing or having anyone killed. These unnerved and mentally-disturbed people whose mildest pastime was to burn cigarettes in the hollow of their hands, had been thinking aloud. She expressed her despair at not finding a man who had courage enough, and loved her enough, to risk everything for her sake. A poor little poet hears it, and thinks that he has only one proof to give—his life, his liberty. He sets out of his own accord, far from her with the obsession of proving that he loves, and nothing more. Folly marks all his acts, the execution, and the flight. All the personages speak and act under the influence of other, of morphine, and of the moral corruption to which this woman, miraculously beautiful, was led at the age of 17 by her husband of whom it is best not to speak. On seeing the Countess Tarnowska, so handsome and with such a gentle expression in her face (for her mouth alone indicates wilfulness), or asks what it is that a good, loyal man could not have made out of so perfect a creature. Everybody, they say, is against her. Then it is because they have not seen her. No; her eyes which were fixed so long and so sorrowfully by her father, who came from far to comfort her are not the eyes of an obdurate criminal.

COMPLETELY POSSESSED.

"Prilukoff, they say, directed everything but I am not quite sure. What inconsiderable advice as he perhaps given to please that woman by whom he is completely possessed? I do not know. But I saw and followed with my eyes for two days the expression of all that can be imagined great and stirring in human sorrow. If for the last two years this man's thoughts are haunted, as I saw them during two hours, no punishment, if he is guilty, can exceed that which he has endured. All alone, far from all, disowned by all, he left everything for this woman, on whom his eyes do not set for a minute, as if he were still afraid; and this woman is lost to him. Oh, that poor face! That poor, wretched wreck of humanity! What a misery: what a pity! Behind and close to the Countess, as if he breathed of her still, is Naumoff. He killed like one possessed; he fled like a madman. He wept, too, like a child; and, in fact, a child he is. At the end of the room, in the far corner of the enclusure, is the chambermaid. Undermined by sickness and by privations, she remains faithful to this woman, who, it is said, is terrible; but who has loved and cared for her, and bandaged her; and she, the poor servant girl, remembers all this, and is grateful. And she is right, this servant maid, not to see an entirely wicked woman in Tarnowska. This woman, so sure of herself physically and morally, weeps and faints at the mere remembrance of the only man whom she loved and who loved her, and who, perhaps, would have saved her from all these horrors. These are the impressions that I have gathered. Honest people will resent it, and morality will suffer; that is understood. But I have pity. I saw down there two aged fathers who deserve compassion. And I know also that there are innocent little ones on whom this tragedy also bears hard. I cannot help thinking of it. Justice, when punishing, will also strike at them. At the mere thought of this my heart is filled with terror, and tears come into my eyes."

VEILED EFFECTS.

Everything is veiled for the moment; bodices, skirts, hats, flowers are now seen in their simple colourings or materials. They are all hidden, or partly so, by a cloud. Cloud is the word that rightly expresses the aspect of fashion to-day, as all the veilings are grey. Light, dark smoke, silver, every shade imaginable of this particular colour is used to cover the brilliant silks, satins, and foulards that compose our toilettes. The bottom of the skirt alone shows the dress proper, and here we have but a hand's breadth visible. For evening and visiting for walking, for driving the short skirt is indispensable. Just touching the ground, for evening wear there is nothing prettier than these closely-fitting satin skirts, veiled with mousseline de soie or voile ninon, which is a thicker fabric a trifle less transparent. A short white satin skirt and low bodice fitting the figure, with white voile ninon gauged at the waist, falling to the knees and beyond just escaping the wide hem a flounce of cream lace in the finest of Brussels application, is the dress most remarked at fashionable entertainments. Colour is introduced in the scarf worn over the shoulders and arms; the favourite shades are a bright cerise and a deep crimson. Even the blouses, still in demand with tailor costumes, have to be veiled to give the necessary harmony. With blue skirts the veiling is blue; with grey it is grey, and so on through the scale of colourings that are employed for jackets and skirts. These over-bodices are made either in mousseline de soie or in a large meshed net, without seams at the shoulders and cut like a low bodice, outlined with a narrow gold or silver galon. The sleeves are generally longer than the blouse sleeve that finishes at the elbow, and the transparent effect on the arm is novel, edged with the same galon as to the decolletage. During the summer we shall be wearing white lace and embroidered lawn blouses with white skirts beneath the short jacket that has quite taken the place of the long sac coat, but when these bodices are worn with coloured skirts they must be veiled.

VEILINGS OF VARIOUS COLOURS OVER CRETONNES.

Not content with the simple veiled effects one of the best dressmakers has launched the triple veil and has scored a success. There is an art in combining colour that everybody does not possess, but when the exact shade is arrived at through superimposing greys and pinks, and deep purples, there is a delicacy or brilliancy according to the purpose to be served that is absolutely charming. Bright cretonnes in rose patterns are being employed in broad bands upon blue linen bodices, veiled with dark blue, and they are perfect with dark blue serge coats and skirts. I have also seen these rose patterned cretonnes placed upon a pinafore bodice below the white lace empiecement and the entire bodice veiled with pink, veiled again with black. The combiations are innumerable, and give great scope to the imagination and personality to the toilette, which after all, is what one most needs.

TABLE DECORATIONS.

To deck out the dinner table with flowers should be the joy of every housewife. It certainly contributes to the pleasure of her guests. At luncheon a table set with Japanese effect of light shadow embroidery, combined with the green Sedji dishes, and some Chinese lilies in the middle in a shallow green dish, arranged in the true Japanese way, giving each flower and leaf its separate value, nothing could be prettier. This delicate Sedji china of sea green, by the way, is lovely in white doylies against polished mahogany, with white lilac as centrepiece, and adds much to the tempting appearance of grapes and peaches when served on it. Newer than cut glass is rock crystal. The designs in this are of unusual grace, and there are some little lamps in the ware for the dinner table—too fascinating for words. For the centre of the table the old copper mugs, once used for measuring rum in the navy, and which take on such wonderful colours, are being brought out again, and they are filled with gay flowers. Old soup tureens of good china are also being turned to a new account, and are placed in the middle of a dinner-table filled with flowers of the handsome kind. A new and popular glass in one so tall and with so thin a stem that it does not interfere with the vision of an opposite neighbour at table. These are charming to look upon if filled with red hips and "old man's beard" (wild clematis) plucked from the hedges, and with the lightest of greenery trailing down on to the table-cloth. As to candle shades, I wonder so much that those popular in Paris of cut glass over silk linings of different colours are not introduced here. The colour can be so readily changed. There is a fancy, too, in Paris for candle shades with crystal bead fringes, which prettily catch the light of the candle.

PSYCHIC MATTERS.

We are all getting extremely soulful and psychic nowadays. The latest assertion is that it is impossible for those whose auras or halos do not match in colour to sit beside each other, so great is the sense of antagonism or dissimilarity. The greater the attraction between people the more harmonious are their auras, it seems. These auras or halos, however, are not seen, except by those who are psychically developed, which is perhaps a good thing.

Greater than the love of Petrarch
For his gracious lady, Laura,
Was my joy in you, beloved,
Till I first beheld your aura.

As my halo's pallid purple,
You may safely guess I spent a
Sleepless night when I discovered
Yours was brilliant magenta.

We must part, and part for ever;
All my joy is torn to tatters
Since I studied auras, spirits,
Spooks and other psychic matters.

BELATED LETTERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

SIR,—I should advise "Disgusted," who gets his letters persistently late through the Post, to address the Superintendent of Post Offices for his division, who will probably treat him courteously, and if he gets no satisfaction in that way, to complain to the Postmaster General, Bombay.—Yours, etc.,

N'IMPORTE QUI.

II.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

SIR,—I would not so much mind getting my letters late if I could be sure of getting them at all. One was posted on Malabar Hill a month ago, to myself in the Fort and since then nothing has been seen of it. It is still in process of delivery.

I TRUST.

STREET NUISANCES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

SIR,—Will you permit me to heartily endorse "Taxpayers" letter in your issue of 18th instant. As far as Elphinstone Circle is concerned the number of beggars, lepers and vagrants of all kind who haunt it daily (and nightly) is nothing less than a scandal to a city. May I further call attention to what is not so much a public nuisance as a common danger. I refer to that corner of the Circle on the left, as one faces the Town Hall. Carriages, ticca gharries and motors coming up Bazaar Gate Street and the Mint Road invariably cut round it on the wrong side, and those turning out of the Circle hug the corner. I witnessed two collisions at this point within half-an-hour of each other one night this week and in both cases police sepoys strolled up after a long interval and took off the (presumably) offending parties. I have seen no notice of any farther proceedings in the matter however. One day some unlucky "bara sahib" will be killed at this corner, and then perhaps we shall have Elphinstone Circle properly patrolled. At present it is merely a happy hunting ground for undesirables of all sorts, a sanctuary for all the waste paper in the neighbourhood, and a place strictly avoided by the guardians of law and order.—Yours, etc.,

A SUFFERER.

BOMBAY VACCINE THERAPY INSTITUTE.

First Annual Report.

THE first annual report of the above Institute furnishes some important information on the treatment of germ diseases by one of the modern methods of treatment. This treatment is advocated by many eminent physicians in Europe where it is making steady progress. Sir A. Acworth Wright's labours in this direction have won for him the gratitude of many a suffering soul. The report of the above Institute shows that altogether 118 persons suffering from bacterial diseases such as consumption, scrofulous glands, tuberculosis of various organs, sinuses, abscesses, boils, carbuncles, eczema, acne, cancer, and other complaints have been treated. Besides the treatment of the above diseases analysis of 163 samples of wine, blood, etc., was made in the laboratory of the Institute. The Institution in point of equipment is up to date. The patients were treated with various vaccines with highly satisfactory results. That Dr. Shivdas should have been able to persuade the Orientals at the very commencement to adopt this new treatment is a matter of no less satisfaction and we would certainly be pleased to see European researches thus promptly introduced and popularized in this country where millions of sufferers die annually from intracable diseases. Dr. Shivdas has spared no pains in making the Institute a success and has been able to place before us some brilliant results of vaccine treatment.

THE total number of deaths registered in Bombay during the week ending April 19, was 857, giving a death-rate of 45·57 per annum per thousand as against 55·83 the corresponding period of last year, and 76·65 the average over the past five years. THE ENGLISH BUDGET.

A MILLION OF MONEY SACRIFICED.

Investment Markets Improved.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, APRIL 20.

In the House of Commons this evening, the finance resolutions were adopted with the aid of the guillotine, by majorities ranging from 81 to 86. The Nationalists voted with the Government and O'Brienites against.

The Income-tax resolution was carried without a division.

The Budget has relieved the Stock Exchange of some uncertainty, and has improved the investment markets.

The "Westminster Gazette" considers that the crisis has caused a loss of revenue of £1,300,000.

Conservative papers declare that the Government has sacrificed nearly a million to party tactics. They point out that the final result of Mr. Lloyd-George's calculations is really a surplus of about a quarter of a million. His surplus of £2,962,000 is attained by the inclusion of £2,700,000 taken from the Sinking Fund for current expenses, with the addition of three millions from the same source forming part of the original estimates.

LONDON, APRIL 21.

Mr. Lloyd-George formally introduced the Finance Bill in the House of Commons last night.

It was read a first time.

LONDON, APRIL 21.

In reply to an attack by Mr. Balfour, who declared that the wording showed that agricultural land would still be taxed and was meant to be taxed, Mr. Lloyd-George said if anybody could suggest a clear form of words, the Government would not hesitate to accept it.

LONDON, APRIL 21.

Mr. Birrell, Dr. Macnamara, Mr. Ure and Lord Pentland were speakers at the anti-veto demonstrations in London and the suburbs last night.

Mr. Birrell addressing a demonstration at Shoreditch said however unbecoming it might appear to create nummerous peers, there was no other way except revolution to alter the character of the Lords.

Mr. O'Brien, in an interview, said Mr. Lloyd-George's statement proved that Ireland had not been granted substantial concessions, owing to the refusal of Messrs. Redmond and Dillon. The only result was the betrayal of substantial interests, and an ambiguous promise which would arouse English alarm and prejudice against Ireland.

HORSES FOR THE ARMY.

Government Ranches Proposed.

LONDON, APRIL 20.

Mr. Haldane, speaking in the House of Commons, said there was at present no shortage of army horses for peace requirements. A system of Government ranches in the colonies had been considered, but the expense and difficulties to be encountered had prevented any definite conclusion.

NEW MOVE BY CHINA.

Seeking to Control the Customs.

INCENTIVE TO ANTI-FOREIGN FEELING.

(THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.)

LONDON, APRIL 21.

The recent appointment of Mr. Aglen as Deputy Inspector of Chinese Customs, while Sir Robert Bredon has been appointed a member of the Shuiwuchu, or Chinese Board of Control, has excited much attention in China. It is now announced that Sir Robert Bredon has resigned his membership of the Shuiwuchu.

The Times, in a leader, discussing the whole question, strongly insists that Britain must not tolerate China's violation of loan agreements by acquiring control of the Customs. It regards Sir Robert Bredon's transfer to the Shuiwuchu as a move in a long campaign to undermine the administrative independence of the Maritime Customs, and urges the Government to require in the interests of every nation, trading with China, complete independence of Inspector-General, particularly in regard to promotions. The "Times" adds, "Anti-foreign feeling will certainly grow, if it is permitted to gain success after success by the breaking of definite pledges."

BIG AMERICAN COTTON FAILURE.

RAJENDRAPUR DACOITY.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

DACCA, APRIL 21.

The Rajendrapur train dacoity case has commenced before Hon. Mr. Newboult, Sessions Judge. It will be remembered that in October last Sonaton Paul, a Narayanganj merchant, sent Rs. 22,000 in the custody of his employees to Kacraid, an intermediate station between Dacca and Mymensingh. When the train left the Rajendrapur station, some young men, who were in the same compartment with the men carrying money, after shooting one to death and wounding others, decamped with the sum from the train which was still in motion. Nearly Rs. 12,000 were recovered from the neighbouring jungle.

At present one Surendra Chakravarty who was arrested at Habiganj, Sylhet, is undergoing trial. Mr. N. Gupta has appeared for the prosecution, and the defence is being represented by Ambika Topadar, pleader. Up to now only four witnesses have been examined including Hemendra Chatterjee and Rashmohon, the two employees of Sonaton Paul, who were stabbed by the dacoits in the train. The former described in detail the occurrence and identified the accused as being one of the assailants. The latter did not identify him. Nearly 47 more witnesses will be examined.

It is believed the case will take a week to conclude.

CHINESE RESIDENT AT LHASSA.

Soldier Appointed to the Post.

ARRIVAL IN CALCUTTA.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

CALCUTTA, APRIL 21.

His Excellency Tsien Shah Pao, the newly appointed Councillor of the Imperial Residency at Lhassa, arrived in Calcutta yesterday, on his way to Tibet. He is staying a few days at the Grand Hotel and will proceed to Darjeeling at the week-end. The councillorship is a new post created as an outcome of flight of the Dalai Lama, and the unsettled state of the country. In selecting Tsien Shah Pao for the appointment, the Emperor of China had an eye on possible military contingencies, for, His Excellency as Commander of the Imperial Body-Guard has been intimately concerned in the reorganisation of the Chinese Army. There has hitherto been an Assistant Resident Chinese Minister at Lhassa, but this functionary has been recalled. His place is to be filled by the new Councillor.

His Excellency is taking his wife and children with him to Lhassa. He is accompanied also by Mr. and Mrs. Chang Yien Peh, Mr. Tsang Kyi Zuk and a large retinue. The Party arrived by the s. s. "Al Kutsang" from Shanghai.

Speaking of the Dalai Lama, the Councillor stated that the Chinese Government recognised his authority no longer in a diplomatic sense. Internal troubles in Tibet compelled us to send troops over the frontier, he said, speaking through his interpreter, and although the Dalai Lama is not supposed to engage in politics in any shape or form, it was his duty as being practically at the head of the state to provide accommodation and facilities of transport for the Chinese soldiers. Instead of doing so however he seems to have regarded the troops as enemies, his aloofness being followed by flight the act of a recreant, which Emperor cannot and will not easily forge. Had he remained in Lhassa, he would not have lost his title.

ALARMING SITUATION IN RANCHI.

Villagers Arming with Bows and Spears.

FANATICS PREPARED TO FIGHT.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT).

CALCUTTA, APRIL 21.

The Sonthals of the village of Khunti in the Ranchi district have of late become very turbulent, and are defying all authority so much that they went to the extent of sending recently an intimation to the local Magistrate saying that if the British Government did not withdraw from the place, they would be compelled to take up arms and fight so as to abolish foreign suzerainty. The ringleader declared himself to be Rama, the incarnation of god, and sent a petition to the local thana asking the British Government to withdraw. He then went to the Magistrate, followed by five hundred Sonthals, armed with bows and spears, and prepared to show fight. The police, however, did not attempt to disperse the mob and as the petition gave a certain time for the Government to withdraw, the Magistrate sent away "Rama", saying that he would forward his letter to Government. Since then the ringleader has been collecting men from different outlying villages by beating drums from the top of a hill, and the local authorities have also been making arrangements to meet an emergency by keeping in readiness military police, whose services have been requisitioned from the Ranchi District. The village is now being thoroughly guarded, it being apprehended that a breach of the peace might take place any moment.

MADRAS ANJUMAN.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

MADRAS, APRIL 21.

The annual meeting of the Madras Anjuman took place yesterday, and the report shows that the institution has good reason to congratulate itself on its financial position. On the other hand, the Committee regrets to report that a very large number of boys came into institution, and left before they had properly learnt their work on the inducement of slightly better wages. This fact, both the President, Mr. Justice Wallis, and Mr. Justice Abdur Rahim deplored. The carpentry branch made a substancial profit during the year, but the carpet weaving branch did not do as well as was expected. The members of the Anjuman are however determined to make an effort to put this important branch of industry on a more satisfactory footing.

ADABARI ARMS CASE.

THE HANGCHOW RIOT.

ACCORDING to reports in the Chinese Press last Thursday night, a cloth shop apprentice entered a Japanese biscuit shop, and after having hit the mark thrice with an air gun, demanded the 3,000 biscuits which were the prize held out. The Japanese shop-keeper refused to give these and in the dispute assaulted the boy. This angered passers-by and a crowd soon gathered together. The Police officer who arrived on the scene, partially took the Japanese side and further infuriated the crowd which gradually swelled to several thousand men. The Japanese mistook his escape, but the mob turned their attention to a Japanese Dispensary close by and mauled the Japanese keepers. The Police Intendant, Taotai Wang of the Bureau of Foreign Affairs, the military secretary and the magistrate, who had turned out, failed to calm the people and restore order and the mob, incited by malcontents broke into seven Japanese dispensaries and sundry goods and biscuit shops in the city and wrought damage to the property in them. The riot lasted till the morning, but fortunately no lives were lost. It is reported that the apprentice was seriously injured. On the following morning the Japanese Consul called on the Chinese authorities in the Bureau for Foreign Affairs, and it is stated that he demanded a sum of Tls. 10,000 for the damage to Japanese property. A Chinese contemporary comments on the improper action of the Chinese officials in allowing the Japanese to open business places in the city, contrary to treaty, and refers to its report last year when it expressed fear of troubles arising.

Further reports say that the incident arose first through the Japanese biscuit-baker's refusal to give the promised prize in biscuits to the boy, and later on through the high-handed action of the police in trying to quash the crowd regardless of right or wrong. On investigation the damages done have been found to be comparatively slight and the Japanese Consul is disposed to effect a conciliatory settlement of the matter. Much indignation has been aroused among the commercial class, which lays stress on the action of the Japanese in opening places of business inside the city contrary to Treaty stipulations. They feel that the Japanese had brought the trouble on their own heads and that the Chinese should not accept responsibility for any consequent damages.

The Provincial authorities in Hangchow, says a native report, recently met to discuss steps for dealing with the Hangchow riot. Many of them suggested a conciliatory settlement, but Taotai Wang Hsingsan, Director of the Bureau of Foreign Affairs, alone held out, on the ground that the Japanese had violated the treaty in trading in the city, and that though representations had repeatedly been made to the Japanese Consul, pointing out the fact, he urged the argument that Hangchow was opened to commerce. The point says Taotai Wang was taken up by the Provincial Assembly which also communicated with him, so that the local authorities, Taotai Wang argued might refuse responsibility for the incident and should not yield in the matter. He accordingly replied to the Japanese Consul disclaiming all liability and claiming for damages to the Chinese police and property.

ARMS FOUND AT HOWRAH.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT).

CALCUTTA, APRIL 21.

Sometime ago the Howrah Police arrested Noni Gopal Gupta and five others in connection with a political gang case. Gupta's house was searched and engines were requisitioned to pump out water from a tank in that house. Yesterday the tank was pumped dry, and a search was undertaken by the police who dug up a portion of the tank and succeeded in recovering a gunpowder flask, a huge sickle and a big old fashioned axe, known to be generally used by dacoits. The finds were taken into custody by the police who are making enquiries to ascertain how they had been deposited there. The search of the tank is still in progress and interesting developments are expected.

A CHAT ABOUT BOOKS.

In seems like a link with the past to meet the name of Rossetti upon the title-page of a new book. All the other leaders of the great Pre-Raphaelite movement have passed away, but Mr. William Michael Rossetti we are glad to learn is still hale and hearty and able to keep continually busy with literary work. He is now in his 81st year and next month hopes to put out an important new volume, entitled Dante and his Convito: A Study in Translations." Mr. Rossetti has always been keenly interested in Dante and it is now forty-five years since his first publication appeared in the shape of a translation into English verse of portions of the "Divina Commedia."

The season for motoring is hard upon us, and the publishers are not behindhand in seizing the opportunity for road-books of every description—antiquaria anecdotal, and practical. Mr. Charles G. Harper, who probably knows more about the highways and by ways of England than any living man, is editing a series of practical road-guides for Messrs. Methuen, and Messrs. A. and C. Black are about to add an attractive volume to their popular series of "Motor Routes." The ground covered by "Motor Routes of France," written by Mr. Gordon Home, will include some of the most exquisite ground available to the Panhard. It will lead the traveller through the country of the Chateaux of Touraine, through Biarritz, the Pyrenees, the Riviera, and the Rhone Valley. Messrs. Black are famous for the excellence of their topographical books, and this should rank among the most popular.

Mr. Henry Frowde will shortly add to his "Oxford Library of Prose and Poetry" two reprints of interest and value. The first of these is a verbatim reprint of Browning's "Men and Women," from the 1855 edition. This book will always possess significance to the lover of poetry, since with its publication Browning first took rank in the public eye above his own wife, who had hitherto been considered by far the greater poet of the two. The other of Mr. Frowde's new volumes is a collection of Shelley's Prose from the Bodleian manuscripts, edited, with corrections, additions, and unpublished fragments, arranged by Mr. A.H. Koszue. Although few critics have been found to support Mathew Arnold's obiter dictum that Shelley's prose would eventually be esteemed more highly than his poetry, there is no doubt that it possesses distinguished qualities which should commend it to the remembrance of all lovers of literature.

Miss Ethel Colbourne Mayne, whose clever novel, "The Fourth Ship," attracted so much attention about two years ago, has a book of rather unusual quality appearing shortly with Messrs. Chapman and Hall. It is called "Things that No one Tells," and contains a series of studies, brief but poignant, of various seamy sides of modern life. The publishers announce that "it deals with the beginnings and endings of human relationships: the broken aims and disappointments which are generally held so sacred that 'no one tells' them, even to his closest friend." This is an appetising programme. The same firm announce a volume of anonymous "Letters to My Son," written by a woman to her expected child, between the time when she knows that she is likely to become a mother and the day of her little son's birth. Here, too, is an original theme, and one that obviously requires great delicacy in the handling.

The same firm are shortly adding another book to their instructive series, "Great Buildings and How to Enjoy Them." The lively increase in the popular taste for good architecture gives this series a sound topical value, and the works already published, dealing with Greek, Norman, and Gothic architecture, have been widely appreciated. The new volume treats of a form of art less generally accepted in this country. Romaneque architecture, of which Miss Edith A. Browne writes, has never become acclimatised in England, but for that very reason it will be, doubtless, only the more interesting to see what the authoress, a very competent authority, has to say in its support.

No form of literature seems to come amiss to Messrs. Hodder and Stoughton, whose comprehensive list includes works in theology, fiction, science, biography, travel, art, and juvenilia. This firm, however, has not, we fancy, been hitherto indentified with sporting books, and it is something of a novelty to find them issuing a work upon hunting. During the present spring they will remove this exception by issuing a rattling book of covertside recollections by Captain Forbes, R.N., with the spirited title: "Hounds, Gentlemen, Please." There are to be pictures to accompany the stories, and it is said that the stories are numerous and varied.

A different kind of hunting with more adventurous escapades, is that which Mr. Hesketh Prichard will tell of in the new volume which Mr. Heinemann has nearly ready. "With a Rifle in Two Americas" tells of big-game hunting in Newfoundland, Labrador, Patagonia and Canada, and it may be relied upon to give a sportsman's record in a thoroughly sportsmanlike spirit. For there is no sportsman living who has a higher reputation than Mr. Hesketh Prichard. He is as well known on the mountainside as he is at Lord's Cricket Ground, and wherever he goes the best traditions of British sport are safe in his keeping.

During the course of April Messrs. Chapman and Hall will publish two novels of rather unusual interest. The first is by Mrs. C. Dawson Scott, whose studies of modern womanhood are among the acutest of their kind. "Madcap Jane," as the book is called, contains yet another of these intimate portraits, and is illustrated by Miss Mabel Ince. About the same time will appear Mr. Philip Gibb's new story, "Intellectual Mansions, S.W.," in which will be found a lively picture of contemporary Bohemian life, together with a strong political interest, in favour of woman's franchise.

Mr. Noel Williams, who has specialised in the biography of dead lovers, has written for Messrs. Methuen a new life of Louis Francois Aimand du Plessis, under the title of "The Fascinating Duc de Richelieu." Few men of any period have enjoined a more glittering reputation with the other sex, and those who take a pleasure in reading of the amorous adventures of the past should find here material to their liking.

Mr. Stanley Paul's rapidly-extending list includes several novels of promise, among which we may mention Rita's "That is to say," Mrs. Stephen Batson's "A Splendid Heritage," and Mr. Herbert Flowerdew's "The Second Elopement." Mr. Paul has also a number of sixpenny editions in the press, including Mr. Temple Thurston's "Traffic" and Mr. Headon Hill's "Troubled Waters."

DACOITIES IN BENGAL.

Police Cannot Cope with Situation.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

CALCUTTA, APRIL 21.

Cases of dacoity in Bengal are increasing fearfully. The police are inadequate to cope with the situation, and life and property are insecure in the interior. After the Garbeta dacoity wired last week, there was a short lull. Yesterday reports of two more dacoities, one at Hughly, and the other at Bongong, reached Calcutta. The usual police enquiry is proceeding.

BOMBAY MUNICIPAL CORPORATION.

The Cutchra Nuisance.

A MEETING of the Bombay Municipal Corporation was held yesterday afternoon, Dr. K. E. Dadachanji presiding.

DUST-BIN CARTS NUISANCE.

Messrs. Abdul Hussein Esufali and Haji Jawad Shaikh Karim in a letter stated that in consequence of the nuisance caused by two dust-bins near their premises, D. Ward, No. 3075, Street No. 88, Banganga Road, Walkeshwar, their premises had remained vacant for more than 10 months and had greatly depreciated in value. They requested that orders might be issued for the removal of the carts.

The Commissioner forwarded a report from the Health Officer in connection with the matter, in which he said that the question of dust-bin sites had often been before the Commissioner and the Corporation and he had, in the past, frequently pointed out that under their system of removing refuse a certain number of standing carts were necessary. In selecting sites special attention was always paid in the direction of avoiding the creation of any nuisance to the neighbours. In the present instance the carts were situated between 60-70 yards away from complainant's house and he could not support complainant's statement that the location of the carts at the end of the lane was the cause of his house being tenantless. There was no other site in this neighbourhood which could be utilised for dust-bin carts. Every endeavour would be made to keep the site as clean as possible.

The Hon'ble Mr. Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy Ebrahim moved that as recommended by the Standing Committee the applicants be informed in the terms of the report.

Rao Bahadur Dhakji Kashinath complained of the dust-bin cart nuisance, from which he said almost every part of the city was suffering.

Dr. Jehangir Cursetji also complained of the nuisance, and suggested that the best way of removing it was to let carts pass through the streets at certain times so as to allow of the cutchra being at once removed instead of its being allowed to accummulate and emit a strench.

Mr. Joseph Baptista said that carts should pass through the streets when the roads were swept, so that the cutchra could be immediately removed.

Mr. A. M. Tod referred to the habit of the people, especially in the Fort, of throwing cutchra from their windows of their house down into the streets and gullies. There had been prosecutions of these persons, but it was always found difficult to ascertain what floor of the house the cutchra had been thrown down. He suggested the erection of chutes to convey the cutchra direct from the windows to the carts. (Laughter.)

The motion was put to vote and carried.

PROPOSED COTTON PRESS.

Dr. Cursetji Eduljee Surti and several others in a letter stated that they had refrained from complaining of the intolerable nuisance caused by noise, smoke and coal sparks issuing from the Power House of the B. E. S. and T. Co. at the corner of DeLima Street and Wari Bunder Road as it was understood that the Power House would be shifted to Kasara Basin, but that they were now informed that it was proposed to erect a Cotton Press on the site and requested that steps might be taken to prevent such a factory being built in the midst of that locality.

The Commissioner in a letter said the Executive Health Officer reported that there was a distance of about 250 feet between the Cotton Press and the Petitioner's residence and that no nuisance need be apprehended either from the Press or the Engine. There was, therefore, no objection on sanitary grounds to the establishment of the Press subject to the following conditions communicated to the party:—(1) The chimney should be carried to a height of 75 feet or to such height as the Deputy Executive Engineer, Mechanical Branch, may suggest, and (2) most modern appliances for the prevention of smoke should be used.

The Hon'ble Mr. Fazulbhoy Curimbhoy moved that as recommended by the Standing Committee, the applicants be informed in terms of the Commissioner's letter.

Dr. Jehangir Cursetji moved an amendment that a committee be appointed to investigate the matter and report whether any nuisance existed as complained of by the applicants.

Mr. W. D. Sheppard, the Municipal Commissioner, said he would welcome the appointment of a committee, which would be similar procedure to that which had been taken in the past about cattle-stables. There might be a locality which the Commissioner might have thought would not suffer from the erection in its vicinity of a Cotton Press or a Factory, but where subsequently it might be found that a nuisance was created. He should, therefore, very much like to see a committee appointed to draw the Commissioner's attention to the probability of a nuisance in the future. As to the nuisance complained of in the present discussion he thought it did not exist.

Mr. Joseph Baptista said that not only this particular locality but other parts of the city suffered from such nuisances. He would support the amendment.

Mr. Jaffer Rahimtoola suggested a modification of the law and the appointment of a committee to define what were nuisances and what were not.

Mr. J. A. Wadia said he would vote against the amendment. He cited the instance of a mill near the Albless Bagh and said it was undoubted that a nuisance existed there, but it was a remarkable fact that the land near the mill had been recently sold and fetched a high price, so that it appeared that the existence of a mill in the vicinity had not depreciated the value of the land there and deterred the purchasers from buying the land. In big cities people had to put up with some nuisances.

Mr. D. E. Wacha wondered why the people living in the vicinity of the Press did not bring an action in the High Court against the parties concerned.

Dr. Sukhia said there was little doubt that the particles issuing from the chimneys of such Factories and Presses caused phthisis. He thought the residents should go and file a suit against the owners of such factories and presses.

The Hon'ble Mr. Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy in reply said he did not think the committee would be of any use.

The amendment being put to vote was lost. The original motion was then carried.

B. E. S. AND T. CO.

On the motion of the Hon'ble Sir Pherozeshah Mehta priority was given to a memorandum from the Commissioner forwarding, with reference to Corporation Resolution No. 7360, dated the 7th March 1910, copy of a letter to his address, dated the 18th March 1910, from the Municipal Solicitors together with a copy of the correspondence therein referred to the purchase of property at the Junction of Foras and Falkland Roads belonging to the B. E. S. and T. Co.

Sir Pherozeshah then moved that the Commissioner be requested to inform the solicitors that before deciding this matter the Corporation insisted upon the Company carrying out their liability in regard to the registration of the Company in India and the Commissioner be requested to take steps to enforce this liability.

Sir Bhalchandra Krishna seconded the motion.

Sir Pherozeshah said it was in the interests of the city that the Company should be registered in India. The Company had been more than once asked to get itself registered in India but it had avoided doing so until now.

The motion was carried.

MACADAMING THE ROADS.

The Hon'ble Mr. Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy Ibrahim moved that as recommended by the Standing Committee regarding a proposal to experiment with Val-de-Travers Asphalte Macadam as a road surface for streets, an additional Budget grant of Rs. 1,400 be made under Section 131 of the Municipal Act, from Surplus Cash Balance, to meet the cost of the experiment.

Sir Bhalchandra Krishna objected to the grant being made. He said it was a sheer waste of money to make the proposed experiment.

As it was 5-40 p.m., the further discussion of the matter was at this stage adjourned.

WISHING SIR PHEROZESHAH AU REVOIR.

The President said that before they adjourned he would on their behalf wish au revoir to Sir Pherozeshah, who was proceeding to England (Loud Applause). They would miss Sir Pherozeshah's familiar face for some time, but they hoped he would soon return among them with renewed health and vigour.

Sir Pherozeshaw in reply thanked the Corporation for wishing him au revoir.

The Corporation then adjourned till Monday next.

ENGLAND'S NEW CITY.

A Great Day for the Potteries.

Writing during mail week a correspondent of the "Daily Mail," contributes the following article on the federation of the Pottery towns:—

There is triumph in the Potteries, for to-morrow is the great day. Six towns will become one. A movement towards federation, which began in 1817, achieves its end to-morrow when Hanley, Burslem, Stoke, Longton, Tunstall, and Fenton will be merged into the great country borough of Stoke-on-Trent, to become thus the twelfth largest town in England. There has been much discussion and much dispute Hard things have been said in council chambers and at ratepayers meeting in shops and at street corners there has been earnest deliberation. Mr. Burns gave the movement his aid in 1906; Major Cecil Wedgwood, great-grandson of the great Josiah, has zealously helped it throughout. In and before Parliament the discussion was close and keen, but there the advocates of federation found another champion in Lord Cromer, a wise and tactful chairman of the House of Lords' Committee. On December 21, 1908, the Federation Act received Royal Assent. To-morrow Stoke-on-Trent, with its 10,000 acres of area and its more than £800,000 of rateable value, comes into being, and for the first time its council meets.

WHERE ART AND LABOUR BLEND.

Here in this centre of England's pottery trade are wonderfully blended art and labour. You can find art and you can find the monotony of labour in London, Liverpool, in Birmingham, in Leeds; but the whole is so pervaded with an air of comfort, the mantle of respectability so enfolds it, that you have to peer and investigate before you come across these two constituents. In Stoke—and henceforth we will use the name in its larger meaning—you are at once overwhelmed with the monotony of the place. Immediately you emerge from any of the stations of the towns which have gone to swell this new city—Burslem, Hanley, Longton, Fenton—the note of unwearying labour sounds for you. Narrow streets and tortuous, through which run colting, clanging, but swift moving tramway bars, mean houses, huddling together as though for warmth, an absence of all architectural beauty, and over all a sombre hue. To nothing can these lines upon lines of dull streets be likened so aptly as to the mining villages of Yorkshire, with this exception, that the monotony in these Yorkshire villages is concentrated on a smaller area and they are undoubtedly more steeped in grime. In Stoke the grime is hardly so apparent, and though the monotony is spread over a wider area, thinned out as it were, it is doubtful whether from this inability to escape it so easily the general effect upon the spirits of the observer is not of a more depressing character.

A POPULATION OF ARTISTS.

This is the one feature only. The other, almost as apparent, and on account of the existence of which much should be forgiven, is the art which flourishes in the city. It would hardly be exaggeration to say that every citizen is an artist in spirit if not in fact. You may safely assume in passing the crowds of any of our large towns that the majority know nothing of art, and care little for it, but it would not be safe to assume so much in the Potteries. Art for art's sake in this locality is not a mere phrase; it is a fact. The spirit which animated Wedgwood is not dead, and countless humble workers in the Potteries, if the lack his skill, are not one with behind him in their love for the beautiful and all that is delicate and graceful in ceramics. As in every other trade machinery had robbed handicraft in pottery manufacture of much of its skill and initiative, but perhaps in no other trade in the world has the in-road made such little headway or done so little to disturb the instructive desire for creation. The way in which the art schools of these Potteries' towns are patronised, and the enthusiasm which marks every exhibition of paintings, by local and aspiring artists comes as a revelation to the average townsman elsewhere, who as a ratepayer boasts a share in a magnificent gallery filled with painting by artists of national repute, and into which he may stroll once a year.

AN EXHIBITION AT TUNSTALL.

It will not be easy for me to forget a visit to one of these exhibitions at Tunstall, which is now to be welded into the city of Stoke. Tunstall itself must be granted the palm for monotony among the six towns. Here every bad external feature of the other five is empasised. The place seems to be a mere spot for dwelling in. There is a deadly uniformity in the houses, a listless air pervades the whole place, and you gain the idea of something which merely exists and has no part or parcel in the work of the world. Surely art can never flourish in such a desert as this. But wait a moment! Into a side street you pass, away from noisy, scurrying cars bedecked with advertisements and

FRENCH EXPLORER'S WORK.

Results of Antarctic Expedition.

The following account of Dr. Charcot's Antarctic expedition in the Pourquoi-pass was written by the distinguished French explorer himself, and is the first full and connected narrative of Dr. Charcot's travels. Dr. Charcot writes:—

On leaving Deception Island (lat. 62deg. 55min, S.), we made our way to Port Lockray, where we commenced our work. From here I made a trip of observation with Godefroy and Gourdon to Wandel, in order to study the lay of the ice, which would save both coal and time. This little journey of forty miles was exciting enough, and the final result of it was satisfactory. Some days later we arrived with the Pourquoi-pass at Wandel; we had bad weather on the way, with a strong north-east wind. The creek was rather small for our vessel; we had not had the time to instal a satisfactory barrier, and the small ice did not protect us. For a week we were in danger there—unable to come out, assailed by enormous ice blocks, which had to be fended off or lashed up night and day. The photographs eloquently describe our condition.

On January 1, Godefroy, Jacques, Gourdon, and I made a reconnaissance to find a better shelter, when we found, at Petermann Island, the harbour which we named in honour of the day, "Circumcision." A few days after we brought the Pourquoi-pass round, having escaped from Wandel without suffering any serious damage by gently wriggling round the icebergs. I set out the same day with Godefroy and Gourdon to explore the South chiefly to climb some eminence to see whether we had any channels to pass with the Pourquoi-pass between Biscoe Islands and the coast. As we reckoned upon returning the same day we had taken neither supplies nor change of clothes. Our mission was easily fulfilled and we saw that the coast was blocked but when we wanted to retrace our steps we found that our path was quite blocked by the ice. During a four days' blinding snowstorm we struggled to liberate ourselves—I will pass over the details of that trial. We were in peril of succumbing from hunger and cold; on the fourth day we shouldered our traps and determined to attempt some vulnerable part of the ice cliffs, whence our signals might be observed by our comrades, when the Pourquoi-pass came to our rescue, skilfully guided by Bongrain and Rouch, whose performances on the siren could be heard through the fog and snow.

On the journey back unfortunately, the vessel stranded violently upon one of the innumerable reefs level with the water; we had to unload, and after three days' and three nights' incessant labour, we got her off again. But we had to leave behind a large piece of her prow, and it was with the vessel in this state that we accomplished the whole of our expedition.

VIOLENT WEATHER.

From Petermann Island we went towards the South, skirting the coast, and completing the chart of the Francis. We found the bay which was marked by Pendleton, the American whaler, and discovered to the north of Adelaide Island a large bay, which we have since named Matha Bay. We next took hydrographic observations of Adelaide Island, which has a very peculiar configuration. But instead of being eight miles in length as is generally supposed, the configuration has a length of seventy miles! South of Adelaide, in a region neither explored nor ever seen, we discovered a great bay, which I have named Marguerite. We entered here, despite the reefs and compact ice, and anchored at a little isle which I named "Jenny," after Bongrain's wife. We now encountered such violent weather for four days that it was a miracle the vessel escaped. An enormous iceberg appeared in front of us, from which only a series of tacks saved us. During our sojourn at that little island three of my men made a two days' excursion, which enabled them to explore the seas between Adelaide and Terre Loubet. To the south of Marguerite Bay we were continually fighting our way through ice and icebergs but we managed to take soundings of the sea bottom around 120 miles of unknown coast. After two attempts to find our way across the ice to Alexander Land, we decided to abandon the project till the following summer.

Despite our efforts to do so, we were unable to winter here. Even if we had decided to do so it would have been disastrous to our observations, and the drift ice would have carried us far from the land. It is impossible to convey any impression of the icebergs and the drift ice in this region. We were obliged to return to Petermann Island, where we were able, with our superior equipment, to confirm and amplify the observations made by the Francis and other expeditions. This summer campaign, despite some bad weather provided us with sufficient atmospheric clarity to take numerous photographs and make observations. The battle with the ice was severe and continuous, but the vessel behaved admirably.

A PAINFUL WINTER.

Our winter station was organised as comfortably as possible. Numerous observations were taken with the electric light, and during a three days' tour I found that the movable house of the Francais made a more comfortable observatory. During the autumn we made numerous excursions. We saw no sun for five days; the wind blew strongly from the north-east, and the snow fell heavily. The ice floes were continually shifting. Many icebergs passed. Despite all precautions, our barrier was frequently broken. The ship was often in danger, and her rudder was smashed, we constructed a new one by cutting up a spar.

This painful winter had a serious effect upon the health of the party. Several suffered from scurvy, and one from myocarditis. It was only seal's flesh which kept us alive.

An expedition to cross Graham's Land was prepared with great care. I intended to lead it myself, but I was disabled by scurvy. Gourdon took my place, setting out with six companions. They brought back some interesting observations, but were unable to scale the insurmountable barrier of granite and ice. Other excursions were also made. After considerable trouble, towards the end of November, we were able to get the ship free. We returned to Deception Island, where we found some whalers who had been held up by ice and bad weather. Here we were heartily welcomed by M. Andresen and his wife on the Chilian steamer Gobernador Bories. With great generosity they helped us by all means at their disposal, and supplied us with 100 tons of coal by order of the Magellan Whalers' Society. As our vessel was making two tons of water per hour, the diver who had attempted to reflost the steamer Telefon, stranded the year before, examined our keel. He could do no more than confirm the gravity of the damage to the bow and some minor damages. We rapidly installed our scientific apparatus on shore. Our naturalist and geologist were able to perform some good work. From Deception Island I wanted to make for Joinville Land to seek for fossils, but the ice very quickly compelled me to change my plan. We did not wish to endanger our journey southward or to suffer the fate which befell the Antarctic in the same latitude. After a brief struggle we were beaten back to Bridgeman Island, where we landed; then to Admiralty Bay and the south coast of the Shetlands were we did some good work.

Thence we set out to the South, the weather all along being bad and misty, and the ice and icebergs abundant. Nevertheless, we were able to go beyond all the latitudes attained to the south-west of Alexander Land, and to complete the chart.

We then discovered a series of new lands to the south and west Alexander Land, in an unexpected place, thus solving an important problem. The deplorable ice-belt barred our nearer approach; in one hour we got no further than ten yards! We continued our route by following the ice barrier until we reached Peter I. Island, which has not been seen since Bellingshausen discovered it. There we were over whelmed by a tempest and thick mist, during which we had to steer carefully among the icebergs. They were so numerous that I estimated we saw more than 5,000 of them in less than a week. We had to drift, without steam, all the time, through a fog so dense, that we could not see further than twenty yards ahead. Despite this and the strong gusts of wind we reached the 135th degree long. W., having sailed from the place where the Belgica set out, between 69deg. and 71deg. lat., that is to say, well to the south of both Cook and Bellingshausen. Our stock of coal being exhausted, the health of several of the party became alarming. We had to turn our faces northward; for a long time the icebergs had been innumerable, but they gradually diminished, and finally we saw the last. The crossing of the Antarctic to Cape Pillar was extremely rapid, thanks to an uninterrupted series of south-westerly and north north-westerly winds, but the sea was terrific. In ten days we arrived at the entrance of the Magellan Straits, where we encountered severe weather. We experienced several anxious hours round the coast, but the magnificent qualities of the vessel and her fine machinery, aided by sails, enabled us to make good use of the wind, and to anchor for some hours in Tuesday Bay. The men's health and the necessity for condensing water for the boilers determined me to spend four days in the Straits. Owing to the unfavourable situation in Tuesday Bay we moved on to Puerto Gallante, where we were able to procure fresh meat and vegetables. We anchored at Punta Arenas, where we were heartily received after fourteen months' absence. During the second summer campaign, as well as the first numerous soundings and draggings had been carried out. Whether among the ice or upon the open sea the vessel behaved excellently, and we had not a single breakdown of the machines. The ship must have been remarkably solid to stand it all. Her equipment was perfect. As for the staff, the scientific results of the mission are due to their noble and incessant labour, whilst the scientific programme was scrupulously carried out.

"TRAPS" IN NEWSPAPERS.

Some little time ago, it was recently stated, when the good ship Baltic pursued her way across the trackless Atlantic those on board received a series of shocks by the alleged receipts of items of senesational news through the medium of wireless telegraphy. A distinguished financier was alleged to have committed felo de se, a young lady held in the highest repute and affection on both sides of the Atlantic was said to have eloped with a member of the British Embassy at Washington, and it was further alleged that Japan had sent an ultimatum to Berlin demanding the withdrawal of German troops from Chinese territory. Naturally the Press of two hemispherers on the receipt of these tidings animadverted strongly upon the reprehensible conduct of the miscreant who was responsible for this jeu d'esprit, and strongly urged that in the event of the crime being brought home to him legal proceedings should be forthwith instituted. Having thus delivered their fulminatory broadsides it must have been not a little annoying to the editorial soul when it came out that the story had no solid basis whatsoever, and that they themselves had been grossly deceived.

To publish false news however is a somewhat dangerous expedient to which to resort, but that it is sometimes done in order to expose the pilfering of items of news acquired at considerable expense, was clearly indicated some little time ago when in an action to prevent a Press Agency utilising the information acquired by another company the latter confessed to having set traps by sending out on divers occasions inaccurate cricket scores, several of which duly appeared in organs subscribing to the service supplied by the defendant company.

One of the good stories told in journalistic circles anent the evanescence of the memory of Bury, Mr. George Toulmin, M.P., is in respect to a trap in type that was set by him and his colleagues on the staff of the "Preston Guardian," when a rival contemporary was suspected of lifting without acknowledgment the items of news sent in by the "Guardian's" reporters. Gathering together a number of his staff the conspirators between them concocted the story of a sensational murder, the scene of which was laid in a corner of the county of the Red Rose, too remote to permit of immediate telegraphic inquiries, and had a special edition of two or three copies, containing the sanguinary tiding printed and published. Care was taken that the "salted" copies should fall in the right hands, and after the lapse of a space of time that in its brevity reflected the greatest credit upon the smartness of the staff on the rival paper, that organ had rushed off an edition containing details of the "crime" that were considerably fuller than the original story. The feelings of the pickers-up of unconsidered trifles when it dawned upon them later in the day that they had fallen headlong into the trap prepared for them may be imagined.

Some few years ago, when a famous firm of map publishers were doing a great trade in maps of the seat of war it was noticed that other firms were producing efforts in cartography that bore a singular resemblance to their own production. When, therefore, further editions were called for, and, as the result of further research and the exigences of the campaign the names of a considerable number of towns, villages, rivers, and mountains had to be inserted, the firm ran into several copies of their production as names several anagrams for the words "Traced, copyright, Law Courts, damages," and awaited results. Long before their patience was exhausted the pirates bold had rushed of fresh editions of their contraband maps, and in one and all were faithfully reproduced the test words that were to be their undoing.

This latter trap recalls an announcement that appeared in the "Musical Courier" of New York a few years ago that bore the following innocent appearance: "The Moscow composer Sihtelotsew has finished a curious new musical work, which is one-third opera, one-third symphony, and one-third oratorio. The opera is called 'Croumorf Rethel' ('The Rise of the World'), and takes over five hours in performance." Apparently this item of news was regarded as being of infinite interest, for its circulation through the press of the States was both complete and rapid. In all sorts and conditions of papers and magazines the announcements of the projected composition of the great Sihtelotsew appeared, with editorial comments, and when, in due course, the "Courier" confessed that the Russian musician's name is spelled backwards, read, "We stole this," and that the name of his singular work was an anagram on the words "from the 'Courier,'" it is to be feared that the victims of the hoax did not altogether bless the editor of their musical contemporary, who was, however, only following the example set by a New York contemporary in the course of the Spanish-American war when almost superhuman exertions well made to secure exclusive news.

On one occasion, in order to make thing somewhat unpleasant for his chief rival, the editor of a prominent New York journey reflectively interpolated into a telegram from the seat of war the information that "Colonel Reflipe W. Thenuz, an Austrian artillerist of European renown," had done divers valiant deeds in an engagement squadron, near Santiago, and having that baibed a trap that is obvious when one is one's guard, waited to see what its rival would have to say about this exclusive bit of information. The conspirators had not long to wait, for the rival periodical promptly walked into the trap, attributed the news to its own correspondent, and, doubtless, congratulated itself on having out-manœuvred its contemporary, whose editor then entered into an elaborate explanation of the trap they had been so successfully laid, in the course of which it was pointed out that the name of the hero of this literally wireless hoax was a simple anagram upon the self-condemnatory words, "We pilfer the news."—The "Globe."

MALABAR HILL PROPERTIES.

The "Parsi": The theory that all land belongs to the State is undisputed by lawyers in India, and there is no better example of the strict rectitude of Government's position than in the ample opportunities which a landholder is given, in case of dispute, of upholding his case before the courts. In the particular case just decided this will be but a poor consolation to the tenants dispossessed on Malabar Hill to make room for the housing of Government servants. The question in dispute was whether the housing of Government servants was a public purpose such as, according to the stipulation, might form grounds for resumption, Mr. Justice Beazan decided that it was. All the comment one can make is that Government have taken a hundred years to arrive at a sense of this duty and have only reached it at a time when, to put it into practice is expensive to themselves and troublesome to other people. It is bad for the dignity and prestige of Government, said his Lordship, for exalted officials to be compelled in inferior houses. Whether it is good for these fragile qualities to turn out tenants from houses in which they have enjoyed proprietary rights for years is another question. Government have had no small share in the creation of the high rents which their exalted officials cannot pay, and derive no small benefit therefrom. To evil people seems a very feeble and half-hearted method of meeting what is admittedly a difficult situation, and it is a method, moreover, which only penalises the non-official for the benefit of the official.

PROPOSED DRAINAGE OF POONA.

The "Rast Goftar":—What an irony of Fate! What comes in through the rivulet, goes out of the ravine. Even the fine city of the Deccan, is to be bisected and intersected, interlaced and interwined with the dragon of drains at a wee little expense; of eighteen lacs of rupees! What a comfortable idea! The city has a natural drainage and being at a much higher level than benighted Bombay, it may be hoped that the dragon there will not be so disastrous in its operations as in 'Urbe-prima-in-India'—and that the powers that be will not commit themselves to the everlasting blunder of placing the round mouth of the drain in the square direction, and vice-versa. But what if they do? Are not the Poona missionaries preparing to fight the dragon and its offsprings by the opening of a Cosmopolitan Charitable Hospital or dispensary,—thanks to the unbounded generosity of the late Mr. N. M. Wadia's trustees' fifty thousands rupees just by a stroke of the pen! ! ! "Simply grand," we hear our readers exclaim! Who could have influenced them? Surely not a Parsi missionary in the Poona or Ahmedabad fold. The trustees declined to crawl by inches and have now beat the long-legged stork in its stride! Let us hope that the day will not be long when the trustees will display the same fit of generosity on behalf of their co-religionists' much needed Central College home for the poor, asylums, etc.

THE LATE MR. W. L. HARVEY.

The "Parsi":—The Bombay Corporation on Monday paid a high tribute to the memory of the Hon. Mr. Harvey, who died at sea on his way to England in search of health. It is commonly said (not without a suspicion of irony) that members of the Bombay Service are ready to take up any duties whatsoever at a moment's notice, but in Mr. Harvey's case the fact was rather that his specialised business talent fitted him for particular posts out of the ordinary run of the Civil Service. A Municipal Commissioner who keeps so tight a grip on a great city's finances is worth almost any salary; inordinary business life the rewards of this particular sort of capacity are enormous: and at the head of the Department of Commerce and Finance Mr. Harvey brought to bear on the problems that presented themselves a knowledge of commercial affair rarely found in bureaucracy. The early closing of the Crawford Market and the prayers offered by the stall holders on the announcement of Mr. Harvey's death were an eloquent testimony of the estimation in which his business capacity, in this one among many quarters of his activity, was held. An official generally lives in people's memories in his farewell address and little else. In this case he really did do so.

THE NEW STANDING COMMITTEE.

The "Kaiser-i-Hind":—The complexion of the new Standing Committee of the Bombay Corporation is certainly as gratifying as might have been expected. The Civic Fathers have from among themselves returned eight of the sixteen who appealed for their suffrage, and it is certainly reflects not a little credit on their sound judgment that their choice should have fallen on men of such undoubted ability and business acumen as Mr. Fazulbhoy Chinoy, Mr. Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy Ebrahim, Mr. S. M. Edwardes, Mr. Manmohandas Ramji and Mr. Jamsetjee Wadia. Among the defeated candidates were Dr. Sukhia and Collie whose presence in the Committee would have been certainly welcomed by a large class of people alike in the interest of efficiency and honesty in civic administration. They were, however, not the only notables in the ranks of the failures. Dr. D. A. D'Monte, Mr. Haji Yusuf, Dr Jehangir Cursetjee, Mr. A. K. Leslie, Mr. Alimahomed Mirza were among them. The election has been a remarkable one from many points of view. The 56 votes cast in favour of Mr. Fazulbhoy Chinoy bespoke not only the popularity of the young Mahomedan gentleman among all sections, but the high reputation he has created for himself by his ability, sterling good-sense, and sound judgment.

OUR NEW CIVIC PLATFORM.

The "Rast Goftar":—What a conglomeration of events! New Corporation, new president, new commissioner!! Add to this, a new Water Engineer, and then, a new Executive Engineer.—and Bombay will be born afresh! The new official year bids fair to open under much happier auspices than the one to which we have bid farewell. But there is no happiness without pain. What an unconscionably long time the Corporators have been by the way, in selecting a new Water Engineer! Is it such a hard nut to crack after all? The hardest of all nuts were much easier cracked by the battered teeth of Nowroji and Blaney, but surely they talked much less. Anywise we are one with the public in stigmatizing the delay as a scandal and rely upon the new Council, the new President and the new Commissioner to remove it. What grand opportunites of doing public good, of redeeming past blunders, of repairing short-comings and of turning over a new leaf lie before the new Council, if it can only stretch out its fingers to clutch at them.

THE RECENT EDUCATIONAL CONFERENCE.

The "Gujarati":—The Educational Conference recently held in this city, will have met in vain if nothing tangible comes of the papers read and speeches made thereat. Government ought to take serious steps to provide facilities for moral education in the institutions under its control by such means as may be available. Parents may be left to give their children the sort of religious education they like, and they may be expected to co-operate with the teachers of their boys in making the moral instruction successful. The next question of importance after moral education, discussed by the Conference was in connection with instruction in civics. In his paper Mr. Natarajan gave a clear idea as to what civics means and how it should be taught to Indian students. The desirability of preparing Indian students for the future life they are called upon to live, must be patent to all. It is a general complaint that youths in India are carried away by false ideals and unsound theories about the nature of Indian society and the Indian State, such as are preached to them in the ordinary press and on the public platform. To correct this one-sided and wrong tendency, students must be thoroughly grounded in the principles of State, Society and Government. Mr. Natarajan pleaded that the study of civics in this country must be mainly historical. But this subject is very difficult and delicate and few will be the teachers who will be regarded as fit to handle it in a proper manner. In a political atmosphere like the present, lessons in civics are likely to degenerate into meaningless sermons on the duties of Indian citizenship, and if only text-books like the 'Citizen of India' are to be taught, that instruction will be equally one-sided and futile.

TAXI-CABSTAND IN BOMBAY.

The current "Bombay Government Gazette" contains the following list of taxi-cabstand for the City of Bombay:—

BY THE WAY.

MELCHIOR DE VOGUE.

Vicomte Melchior de Vogue, of the French Academy, whose death has been announced, was a man of many books, but the one work which made him famous was a volume of critical essays entitled "Le Roman Russe." In it he raised the banner of revolt against the Realists in the name, not of Romanticism but of Idealism—a quality in which he found such writers as Stendhal and Flaubert lacking. The reaction against Realism may be said to date from its appearance. Incidentally M. de Vogue spoke in terms of enthusiasm of George Eliot's writings in general and "Adam Bede" in particular. "A tear," he wrote, "falls on the pages of this book, and I defy the cleverest critic to say why. The things is beautiful as if it were the voice of God—that is all that one can say."

THE LATENT HEAT OF LAVA.

Mr. Frank Perret, the American volcanologist, who has taken the temperature of Etna's newly ejected lava, and found it to be 900deg. C. (1,652deg. F.), was in the Mount Vesuvius Observatory with the late Professor Mattenuci during the whole of the great eruption of four years ago, and almost lost his life when the lava surrounded the building. He has just revisited Vesuvius and examined the deposits of the 1906 eruption, which he found still very hot. Two years after the eruption the lava on the slopes of Vesuvius had a temperature of over 700deg. F., and in the summer of last year, more than three years after it had been thrown out of the crater, it gave a thermometric reading of 150deg. F. Vesuvian lavas from the eruptions of twenty-eight years ago still uncomfortably warm.

THE LEASOWES.

The Leasowes, the beauty-spot at Halesowen, not far from Birmingham, associated with the poet Shenstone, is in danger of spoliation tenders being invited for some 450 of its trees. Hugh Miller, who was a visitor there half a century ago, described the Leasowes as "the patrimony which poor Shenstone converted into an exquisite poem, written on the green face of nature with groves and thickets, cascades and lakes, urns, temples and hermitages for the characters." The place was the envy of Scott, who was stirred by Dodsley's account of it to "prosecute those experiments by which a species of creative power is exercised over the face of nature, and which in his case resulted in Abbotsford."

CANADA'S BUFFALO PARADISE.

The largest herd of buffalo in the world is now owned by Canada, says a writer in "Canada." They form a most picturesque group as they roam over the new national reserve set apart for them near Wainwright, one of the growing towns on the Grand Trunk Pacific, 125 miles east of Edmonton. It is only within the past summer that Canada on the north has wrested from the United States the honour of having the most representative herd of this distinctively North American animal, which is rapidly disappearing. The Dominion Government recognised the need of action if the bison were to be preserved, and, before Washington had realised it, they had purchased practically the entire herd of 600 or 700 from Michael Pablo, of Montana, who had carefully gathered them together and protected them on his great ranch, near Ravalli.

A DIFFICULT TASK.

In the Wainwright National Park there are now more than 600 buffalo, which were transported across the international boundary line by train from the Pablo ranch. The rounding up and loading on the cars of this large number of untamed animals and their young was no light task, and after a long period of hard work, more than 150 of the most unruly had to be left behind; in addition, seventy-five buffalo, formerly confined in a park at Banff, were sent to the Wainwright reserve. It is expected that the herd will number 1,000 head in a year or so, as in the present favourable environment they should multiply rapidly. Their "stamping ground" covers an area of 167,000 acres—165 square miles. A wire fence 8ft. high and seventy-three miles long encloses it.

PEACE AND PROGRESS IN NIGERIA.

The report on Northern Nigeria for 1908-9 has been issued by the Colonial Office. It is stated that the year under review was a very peaceful one, the few operations which it was found necessary to carry out being only on a small scale and chiefly on account of highway robbery. The general feeling of the Emirs and native chiefs towards the British Administration was reported to be most friendly, and the people showed signs of wishing to be on friendly terms with the Government. The position of the agricultural classes was one of progressive tranquility and content. The inter-colonial slave traffic is decreasing, and local slave-dealing, though not entirely stamped out, is not extensive.

THE LONDON MISSIONARY SOCIETY'S FLEET.

The fleet of the London Missionary Society, according to the Sunday at Home, consists of the following vessels:

1. John Williams (steamship)	In the South Seas and New Guinea
2. The Nine (ketch)
3. Hanamoa (cutter)
4. Furari (oil launch)

and many whale-boats used by missionaries and native teachers.

5. Morning Star (steel lifeboat)	On Lake Tanganyika.
6. Mandie (Berhampur) and 7. Tara (Calcutta)	In India
8. Gospel Boats (Amoy and other stations)	In China.

The ss. "John Williams" makes three voyages during the year and travels, in all, 33,000 miles in the twelve months, visiting 110 stations.

INGERSOLL AND HIS PRONUNCIATION.

Mr. George Grossmith, in his little book, "Piano and I," tells that when in America he met Ingersoll, who stayed at the same hotel. The famous atheist lecturer began "chipin" Henry Irving, who was also at the same place, about his pronunciation, when Mr. Grossmith said to him: You may be right—but you are not infallible. You said just now it's twelve o'clock (with the "t" left out). You also said that you had received a shark (with the long "a.") I suppose you mean "clock" and "shock." Now, will you allow me to say, Mr. Ingersoll, that I don't look upon American as fools. The result is that Irving's theatre was crammed to suffocation, my little hall was crowded, and I hear that you have played to a nearly empty house "No," I muttered, "the Americans are not fools!" "My exit from the room," says Mr. Grossmith, "was polite but effective."

ADAM LINDSAY GORDON.

One June 24 it will be forty years since Adam Lindsay Gordon, the most famous of Australian poets, shot himself in a fit of despondency on Brighton beach, near Melbourne. A movement has been started to erect a suitable memorial over his remains in Brighton cemetery. Gordon was a member of a military family, and was educated at Woolwich, but some scrape connected with a horse blighted his Army prospects, and led to his emigration to Australia, where he had a variegated career as mounted trooper, member of Parliament, jockey, livery-stable keeper, journalist, poet, and various other things. He published three volumes of poems in Melbourne, but they did not meet with much appreciation in his life time. Several editions of his poems have been published in London, and his biography has been issued under the title of "The Laureate of the Centaur."

BACK TO WORK.

Human nature has changed but very little through the centuries. "To the office," wrote Pepys in his Diary, on the Tuesday of Easter week 1666; "but Lord what a conflict I had with myself, my heart tempting me a thousand times to go abroad about some pleasure or other. . . ." How many thousands wending their way Citywards this morning might have expressed their feelings in those identical words!

SENATOR FAIRBANKS, the former Vice-President of the United States, is reported to be lying seriously ill at Indianapolis.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button. It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by medicine dealers everywhere.

GREEN ROOM GOSSIP.

MR. DU MAURIER AS A BURGLAR.

In "Alias Jimmy Valentine" at the comedy, Mr. Gerald du Maurier is again the gentlemanly burglar. His appearance, writes a London correspondent, is somewhat spoiled in the firs act, for this specimen of the type begins his stage career in the undignified position of a burglar caged, and the dress worn in American prison is not beautiful. This, however, does not prevent the heart of young Rose Lane from going out towards him, for she recognises in him the man who two years ago saved her from a ruffian in a train. He tells a pathetic story of innocence (all a calm and plausible lie), and she gets him a pardon with the help of her uncle, who is Lieutenant-Governor of New York. He then, for the sake of her beautiful eyes, resolves to go straight. It is difficult. Old pals picture to him the glorious hours spent and to be spent in the cellars of banks, the flooring of the watchman, the thrilling sound of the policeman's footstep, the creak of the opening safe—for safes are his strong point. Yes, it is difficult, and he nearly yields, particularly when he realizes that unless he turns traitor and spy the police will be dogging him from job to job for the rest of his life, or till they drive him back again into crime. These, be it remembered, are the New York police. But for her beautiful eyes he will turn straight; and she, to prove her faith, gets him work even in her father's bank—and he takes with him his dearest pal to be its watchman. The experiment is a complete success. In three years he is the assistant-cashier, counting out dollars by the hundred thousand on a tray, and his pal the watchman is the idol and the darling of little Bobby and little Kitty. Never was reformation so complete. But there comes Doyle, the detective, a vindictive fellow baulked of his prey, and determined to crown his career by getting the champion safe-opener of the age back into his clutches. Jimmy (now living under his real name of Lee Randall) is wanted for a burglary which took place before the burglary for which he was doing time when we first met him. Doyle is on his track, but is met by a bland and impudent alibi arranged with considerable circumstantial detail, and a confident denial by Lee Randall that he was ever Jimmy Valentine at all. Jimmy has been good for three years, but has not forgotten the methods of defence which served him when he was bad; and they are almost successful, and Doyle is on the point of retiring baffled when the watchman (well-known to him) rushes in. Little Bobby has shut up little Kitty in the bank's new safe. The men have gone, and nobody knows the combination which will open it. It is air-tight. Rose is in anguish for her sister. All thought of alibis and mistaken identities is at an end, and Doyle sees at last the prince of safe-openers at his work, blind cold in a darkened vault, nervously, frantically fingering at the revolving plates which give him the magic formula, with his pal the watchman holding the matches at his side. After five tearing minutes the child is saved, and he would be a hard detective indeed who would not retire respectfully from the scene with good wishes for a happy future.

ONE OR TWO CURIOUS THINGS.

I have no idea why the combination could not have been got by telephone from the makers in less than one minute—unless it was after business hours or how any conceivable fumbling by even the most expert fingers could discover the secret of a fortuitous collocation of numbers. But, after all, Jimmy was a charming fellow and a very prince of safe-openers, and when you have accepted that fact with the blind faith of the true believer you will enjoy the play immensely. It is an admirable little specimen of the detective-story play—well and tersely written, with just the proper touch of melodrama in its dialogue, exciting without being too unnatural, and maintaining the uncertainty, and consequently the interest, to the very end. It is far better than "Raffle" and "Arsene Lupin" in that it is not nearly so extravagant, and besides giving us a gentleman burglar of a very fascinating impudence it gives us in Mr. Guy Standing a most impressive detective (not, I hope, of a kind which really exists, though possibly America produces policemen so frankly "out for blood") and in Messrs. Harry Nicholls, C. M. Hallard, D. J. Williams and Fred Cremlin some very clever studies of different aspects of crime. The children, too, are charming, and the one love scene is delightfully fresh and simple, and played quite perfectly by Mr. du Maurier and Miss Alexandra Carlisle. The author is Mr. Paul Armstrong, and, not being too ambitious, he has done very well one of the things which American dramatists can do best.

GRASSO'S OTHELLO.

As Grasso's Othello is the topic of the hour in the playgoing world, the following extracts from the letter of a private correspondent giving his view of the performance may be of interest:—I do not concur in the opinion that Grasso's Othello is the finest since Salvini's. With all its faults and mannerisms I would rather see one act of Irving's intellectual conception of the character, with its wonderful insight into the author's intentions, than the whole of Grasso's performance. The less Shakspeare's intentions were followed the finer Grasso was. His killing of Iago, and his own death were magnificent, but neither effect could have been obtained had Shakspeare's text been followed. A minor point was the dress in Act II, where he rushes in to quell the disturbance. Surely Othello had retired to rest, and would have hurriedly thrown on a loose garment? This Othello appeared to have slept fully dressed, and in elaborately laced-up boots! In the first act I thought Grasso wonderfully restrained and promising, in the second most disappointing. I could but remember both Salvini and Irving in the meeting with Desdemona—the effect they conveyed of being "choked" with happiness: "I cannot speak enough of this content, It stops me here; it is too much of joy!" To me Grasso conveyed nothing of this. In the last three acts his portrayal of agonised jealousy, his falling in a fit, and above all his acting in the final scene, were supremely fine; but I venture to think he was never the Moor Shakespeare imagined.

CONSISTENT STILL.

It is not quite clear how the killing of Iago—by the way, one did not gather that the Ancient had been "killed," only that he had been wounded, which is in accordance with the play—and the death-scene of Othello, violated Shakspeare. The text of the suicide scene is as follows:—

Othello. I took by the throat the circumcised dog,
And smote him—thus [Stabs himself.
Ludovico. O bloody period!
Gratiano. All that's spoke is marr'd.
Othello. I kiss'd thee ere I killed thee;—No way but this,
Killing myself, to die upon a kiss. [Dies.

It is difficult to see what Grasso's Othello does in violation of this scene as written by the poet, save that he cuts his throat instead of stabbing himself to the heart the probable though by no means positive meaning of the words "stabs himself." All the rest—the agony, the collapse the crawling across to floor to Desdemona's bed and the death in the act of kissing seem a natural development of the scene, particularly when Grasso's acting in the third and fourth acts is borne in mind. One can, of course, imagine the passage played with a grander reserve, a more classic dignity. "Like the great Roman is the Capitol," he might have adjusted his mantle e'er he fell. But after all the death of Othello has to harmonise not only with the dignity of the character in the earlier scenes, but with its semi-insanity in the middle act and the fourth and bearing this consideration in mind one cannot only admire Grasso's acting in the death-scene but also find it inspired by the Shakspearean spirit.

A FRIEND OF IRVING'S.

Mr. H. J. Loveday, the stage-manager and life-long friend of the late Sir Henry Irving, met with an accident some time ago which has rendered him unable to follow his vocation. Under the circumstances, his friends are anxious to show their appreciation of his many good qualities; and Mr. George Alexander and Mr. Martin Harvey are forming a committee to organize a complimentary matinee, which will take place at the St. James's Theatre on Friday, May 27. It is anticipated that all the prominent actors and actresses associated with the Lyceum regime will give their help, and it is to be hoped that the occasion will prove a great success.

A HIGHLY interesting communication has been made to the Academie de Medecine by Dr. Rosenthal regarding successful experiments with a new serum in cases of acute rheumatic fever, and especially as to its efficacy in warding off the after-results which affect the heart.

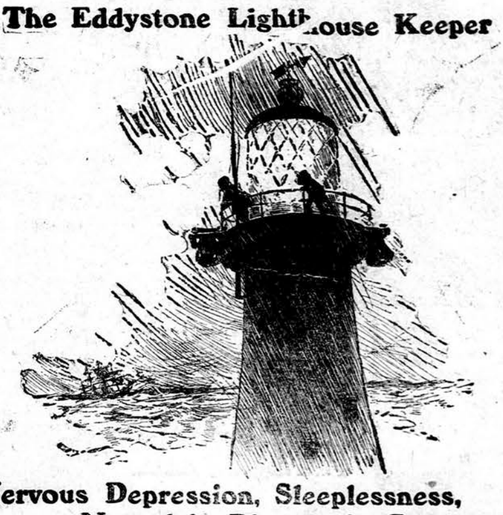
The Eddystone Lighthouse Keeper


Nervous Depression, Sleeplessness, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Cramps—
Because he has benefitted so tremendously by taking Phosferine, Mr. Francis Warder, head keeper of the Eddystone Lighthouse, now realises that until he took "the Greatest of all Tonics," the best time of life was slipping away in ill-health. Disorders came so gradually that he was resigned to consider it natural to be getting a bit stiff, not sleeping soundly, or eating so heartily, and somehow not able to enjoy things.
The overpowering depression which Phosferine dispelled, had been slowly accumulating during the 33 years of Mr. Warder's vigilant custody of lighthouses, when the long, lonely spells of duty, the unvarying monotony, the nervous strain of his responsibility, dulled and tired his very senses.
The lost vigour is now regained, and Mr. Warder declares he is as active, hardy, and lively since taking Phosferine, as he was ten years back.
Completely and Easily Cured.
Mr. Francis William Warder, principal keeper, Eddystone Lighthouse, writes:—"I have read what John Haylett, the Caister lifeboat coxswain, thinks of Phosferine, and I feel you would be glad to know what a lot of real good your famous tonic has done in my case. My occupation is monotonous and lonely, and, in rough weather, having to be always on the watch, I suffered a great deal from loss of sleep, and, even when tired out, could get no real rest owing to stiffness and rheumatic cramps. After trying to stave this off for some time and only getting worse, I got some Phosferine and felt relief from the first dose. I can tell you it is just a marvel how well and fine I feel now, at the rheumatism and neuralgia has gone, and I have a grand hearty appetite, steady nerves, and sleep well. Why to tell the truth, I feel as active, hardy, and lively since taking Phosferine as I was ten years or so back, and it's wonderful, it is indeed, how Phosferine holds a man together."—June 7, 1909.

LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL

THE PUREST. THE MOST PALATABLE. THE MOST DIGESTIBLE. THE MOST EFFICACIOUS.

Incontestably proved by Forty Years' Medical Experience to be The only Cod Liver Oil which produces the full curative effects in

CONSUMPTION AND DISEASES OF THE CHEST, THROAT AFFECTIONS, GENERAL DEBILITY, DISEASES OF THE SKIN, WASTING DISEASES OF CHILDREN, RICKETS, AND ALL SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.

DR. PROSSER JAMES, Lecturer on Materia Medica, London Hospital.

"Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL contains the whole of the active ingredients of the remedy, and is easily digested. Hence its value, not only in Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, but in a great number of cases to which the Profession is extending its use."

DR. SAUNDERS, C.B., Late Deputy-Inspector-General Army Hospitals, Superintendent London Medical Mission.

"I have used Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL extensively among the sick poor of St. Giles's, and consider it a valuable remedy, especially in the Wasting Diseases of Children."

DR. HUNTER SEMPLE, Physician to the Hospital for Diseases of the Throat and Chest, London.

"I have long been aware of the great reputation enjoyed by the LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL introduced into medical practice by Dr. DE JONGH, and have recommended it with the utmost confidence. I have no hesitation in stating my opinion, that it possesses all the qualities of a good and efficient medicine. Its taste is by no means disagreeable, and might even be called pleasant. I have found Dr. DE JONGH'S OIL very useful in cases of Chronic Cough, and especially in Laryngeal Disease complicated with Consumption."

DR. WHITMORE, Medical Officer of Health, St. Marylebone, London.

"My own somewhat lengthened experience as a Medical Practitioner enables me with confidence to recommend Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT BROWN COD LIVER OIL as being more uniform in quality, more certain in its effects, more palatable, and infinitely less likely to disagree with the stomach than the Pale Oil. If I were asked for an explanation of the marked success which for so many years has attended the administration of Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL, I should say that it is owing to its extraordinary medicinal, dietetic, and regiminal properties, and which are found to exist in no other medicine that I am acquainted with, in such uniform combination.

Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL is supplied ONLY in IMPERIAL Half-Pints, Pints and Quarts, sealed with Berry's Patent Capsule impressed on the top with Dr. DE JONGH'S Stamp, and on the side with his Signature, and the Signature of ANSAR, HARFORD & Co.; and bearing under the wrapper a Label with the same Stamp and Signatures. WITHOUT THESE MARKS NONE CAN POSSIBLY BE GENUINE.

Sold by all respectable Chemists, Druggists, and Storekeepers throughout the World.
